

Software CD Sign Out Agreement

Certain software companies allow their software to be installed both on a work computer and a corresponding user-owned home computer. Licensing details will vary depending on platform, software title, version and whether it is from a boxed copy or a “license-only” version. The software is often limited to non-concurrent use. The software must be used for University-business only. Using it towards private gain would be a violation of the academic license agreement under which the software was purchased.

Agreement

By signing this form, I understand the conditions set forth in my particular software license and agree with them. I further understand that I am responsible for installing the software and that Arts and Architecture IT will not provide support for my home machine or assist me in the installation. I also agree to not duplicate the installation CD in any way. I will return the installation CD within one week of borrowing it or understand that I will not be able to borrow future software.

When I am no longer employed by the Penn State I will remove the software from my home machine.
